As both a Certified Application Counselor and as a health insurance broker, I see so many people fall into the coverage gap between what Medicaid provides, and the income threshold necessary to enroll through the Health Insurance Marketplace.

People with cancer. People with diabetes. People with undiagnosed illnesses. It's a helpless feeling not being able to provide them with an affordable way to take care of their health.

And here in rural Utah, we're not talking about "poor" people. We're talking about people who work on ranches, in restaurants, as tour guides. People who bust their butts every day in the work force, bagging groceries, manning the cash registers, driving taxis.

To not take advantage of the opportunity to bring our own tax dollars back home to help this vital segment of the population? Try explaining that to someone who can't afford to take care of their illness.
